

Script tests a program that generates 100 elements of random Student ID's and grades to write to 2 different files. The test script then reads the files and outputs the number of random elements for each file.

